165,000 Test Kits arrive

The highly anticipated shipment of 135,000 COVID - 19 testing kits ordered by Government from South Korea arrived on Wednesday. It's the first consignment of an order for 200,000 units.

The remaining 35,000 are on their way to Cayman from the South Korean suppliers via London due to capacity constraints on the chartered aircraft.

Those are expected here at a later date via commercial transportation.

A government statement on Wednesday disclosed the cost of the order to be US$4.4 million averaging around US$22 per kit.

The hard-to-obtain kits were sourced through the joint efforts of the Office of His Excellency the Governor Martyn Roper, the British Embassy in the South Korean capital Seoul, and the Cayman Islands Government.

FIRST PHASE OF BUSINESS RELIEF MEASURES ANNOUNCED

Small and medium-sized businesses in Cayman are to get a respite from the pressures brought on by the COVID-19 crisis.

Minister for Commerce, Hon. Joey Hew has outlined the initial measures on Monday in what he said was the first tranche of the Government's offer.

The package consists of a low-interest loan programme, grants for small and micro-enterprises along with technical assistance and training.

The Government has set aside a total of $KY 14.5 million for this first phase of its COVID-19 small and micro-business support programme.

In making the announcement, Min. Hew said Government has been mindful of the challenges facing the business sector particularly the smaller enterprises resulting from the COVID-10 outbreak.

"Right here across our Islands, we see economic activities in major sectors have come to a halt. And, there is no doubt that business and commerce

Easter In Cayman 2020

By Flynn Bush

For the last seven years, I have had the distinct privilege to write an article on the significance of, and the customs involved in, Easter in the Cayman Islands. Now, once again, that time of the year has rolled around. Yet, this year there is quite a different atmosphere. Life is significantly different from what we have grown accustomed to. Categorically, the reasons can be summed up with one word - coronavirus.

A helping hand for small business

If you've been a regular listener to the daily government press conferences, you would surely have heard the Premier warning that we are in for a tough ride that will not be coming to an end in the immediate future.

That must be a tough pill to swallow for anyone, much less owners or employees of small and micro businesses.

Many of these businesses have shut their doors wondering if they will ever open again.

It was heartening to hear Commerce Minister Joey Hew earlier this week announce a $14 million package to assist many of these vulnerable enterprises. As a publication whose genesis stems from business and employment matters, we, at Caymanian Times, applaud the Minister and the Government's efforts to provide some type of support for these businesses, some on the verge of total collapse. It was, indeed, our editor at the press conferences, who insisted that we heard measures to support small businesses.

While the Government's efforts should be applauded, their efforts here are by no means a magic wand to save these entities from collapse during this time of global crisis. It will be a good time for our Caymanian entrepreneurs to take stock of their business models and ensure they have a workable plan toward success and longevity.

It is important to note that previous efforts by Government to assist small and micro enterprises was met with a lukewarm, if not frigid response. This time with many owners seeking a way to keep their doors open, it would be great to have them not only financially from the grants but also from the technical expertise offered so that when we start to recover, we can proudly say that small businesses are the backbone of the economy going forward.

With this being Holy Week now, there would normally be certain activities going on. Tents and campsites would already be setup on the beaches and shorelines across the islands. Church services would be taking place or prepared for (Palm Sunday, Holy Monday, Holy Thursday, Good Friday, Easter Sunday, etc.). Families would be preparing for special meals and large get-togethers. However, none of those things are happening now. At least not in the same manner.

This year as we face an unexpected pandemic, our very outlook on life has changed; significantly for many of us. Now, staying away from our elderly parents and other loved ones is an act of love. Children can no longer play with their friends. While outside, it is necessary to ensure that we don't even cross too closely to other people. In an instant, many of the things that make us human are gone or impossible; there is zero or little physical contact. However, in the midst of everything, the significance of Easter has not changed.

Let me repeat that again - The significance of Easter has not changed. We may be unable to attend church or to gather in a group for worship, but it does not change the facts surrounding why this Holy Week is celebrated in the first place. God still sent His son, and Jesus still chose to die for our redemption, and He still rose from the dead conquering even death in the process. Regardless of one's beliefs, or even if one does not believe at all, Easter is still a story of hope; and hope is a valuable commodity in these uncertain times.

Without banging the drum repeatedly on my point of faith, I would like to invite every person in these three islands to pause for a second and meditate on our current situation. Yes, things are extremely dicey, and we must be very cautious nowadays. Still, I ask that each person also think about the other times in history where everything seemed bleak. In even the worst of cases, World Wars One and Two come to mind, the times of despair were always followed by renewing periods of hope. There is that word again - hope. It is what will keep us afloat in this crisis, and it is what will bring us through it.

So, regardless of what one's hope is based upon, I ask that everyone draw on it. Your hope may be based on science; or the essential workers (health workers, first responders, researchers, doctors, etc.); or the government; or in your spirituality and faith. Regardless of what it is that fortifies you, my prayer is that everyone in this great nation of ours retains that strength. May our hope remain always.

POLICE NEWS

RCIPS Warns of Potential Cybercrime Scheme Using Malicious USB Devices, 6 April

The RCIPS is informing the public, particularly IT managers and business users, of a notice being circulated by INTERPOL regarding a new cyber-crime scheme targeting businesses in the Executive Management, Information Technology, and Human Resources fields.

The scheme involves mailing USB devices to the targeted businesses, contained in packages which usually include gift cards or toys. When one of these USB devices is connected to a company computer, the device gathers system information, gains administrator privileges, and then forwards the information to a remote server. A fake message box is often displayed during this process, warning of errors on the thumb drive.

Although there is currently no evidence of such devices being received in Cayman, all persons are advised to be aware of the potential dangers of connecting USB devices from unknown sources to your system.

Anyone who believes they may have fallen victim to this or a similar scheme, is advised to contact and report the matter to RCIPS.

HSA and Cancer Registry observe National Cancer Registrars Week

The Health Services Authority and the Cayman Islands Cancer Registry join communities and medical professionals across the world to observe Cancer Registrars Week, April 6-10, 2020 and recognise the country's progression in voluntary cancer registration.

This year's theme '2020 Vision for the Future' reflects the critical role cancer registrars play in capturing data that informs cancer prevention and screening programs, treatment, and research.

"Understanding cancer data is the key to the nations fight against cancer. By collecting and analyzing cancer data we can better plan healthcare infrastructure, clinical services and other support systems" Amanda Nicholson, the Cayman Islands Cancer Registrar.

"Within our community, National Cancer Registrars Week isn't just about cancer registrars. It's also about recognising everyone involved with cancer surveillance and prevention. We rely strongly on our partner organisations, the nurses and doctors at our local hospitals, and most importantly, cancer survivors themselves. Cancer prevention efforts in Cayman come from a large network of people and organizations within our community."

The Cayman Islands Cancer Registry is a population-based health registry that relies on persons to volunteer the information as it is not mandatory in the Cayman Islands. The registry is unique in its cancer surveillance which captures data on a diverse and multicultural population in the Cayman Islands. The registry was developed to better understand what cancer trends look like within the Cayman Islands, thereby making it possible to do more in terms of prevention.

"From the data collected we can start to see some emerging trends taking shape. In 2019 the most reported cancers for males included prostate cancer, cancers of the blood and lung cancer respectively. For women the most reported cancers were breast cancer, colon cancer and ovarian cancer. Breast cancer remains the most reported cancer to the registry overall."

Approximately 68% of registrants for 2019 were female and 32% male. Most cases in the registry for last year were reported by registrants within the first 6 months of receiving a diagnosis.

The Cayman Islands Cancer Registry is calling for cancer patients & survivors to register and complete the online data collection form. All information included in the registry is confidential and anonymous as the registry uses a digital numbering method, database designed by the World Health Organisation (WHO) and customised to fit the needs of Cayman's unique community.

Registering only takes a few minutes and can be done in person or via e-mail. Anyone wishing to register, or learn more about the national cancer registry, may contact Amanda Nicholson at (345) 244-2560 or Amanda.nicholson@hsa.ky.

Island Heritage Insurance Responds to Community Needs Arising From Covid-19

Island Heritage Insurance Company, Ltd. announced today its community support efforts in response to the Covid-19 crisis, pledging $20,000 USD to two organisations currently working under greater pressure than ever.

Founded in 1996 in the Cayman Islands, Island Heritage Insurance Company, Ltd. ("Island Heritage") is a leading provider of personal and commercial insurance, including property, casualty, motor and yacht. In 2018, the Island Heritage Retirement Trust Company was approved as a Cayman-registered pension plan provider.

Island Heritage holds a financial strength rating of "A (Excellent)" by A.M. Best, along with a proven track record of customer service excellence throughout the Caribbean. Island Heritage is part of the BF&M group of companies - like-minded organizations with one goal in mind: providing insurance the way it should be.

Island Heritage has pledged $10,000 USD to Cayman Islands Meals on Wheels, which is seeing a rapidly growing waiting list of vulnerable people needing meals. In addition, the amount of $10,000 USD is being donated to the Cayman Islands Crisis Centre, which provides safe temporary shelter for women and their children suffering from domestic abuse. Unfortunately, the lockdown has led to an increase in requests to shelter at-risk people.

Island Heritage's parent company, BF&M Limited, headquartered in Bermuda, has pledged $10,000 to support a joint corporate/hospital initiative to bring in urgent personal protective equipment for community frontline carers. The Company is further donating $10,000 to The Coalition of Protection of Children, which estimates needing to service more than double the number of families and children in need. As well as helping to replenish food supplies in the Coalition storehouse, the funds will go towards providing medications, laundry supplies, and personal hygiene supplies.

John Wight, Group Chairman and CEO of BF&M Limited, explains: "At a time that is stressful in so many ways for so many people, we are thinking about those who need extra help. Our customers depend on us to be there for them when they need us; we also believe we must support our communities at times of crisis, when we can."

HUGE SHIPMENT OF COVID-19 TEST KITS ARRIVE

Governor Roper said: "Moving consignments around the world is proving extremely difficult at the moment, so I'm pleased we've been able to get these test kits here in such a short space of time."

He added that "This consignment will enable our health professionals and front line workers, and large numbers of the public to be tested."

"This is a huge step in keeping on track with the containment part of our strategy. I would like to pay particular tribute the private sector collaborators we worked with."

Premier Alden McLaughlin, in adding his thanks to those all involved in this operation, remarked: "I know how challenging it was to source, procure and transport a consignment like this from the other side of the world in such challenging times."

"The work and generous donations from the private sector were instrumental."

Mr McLaughlin said, "Cayman is now in a much better place in our ability to ramp up testing and keep everyone safe."

The Government statement noted that "the complex and challenging arrangements for the procurement and consignment were led by the Governor's Office in collaboration with the Cayman Regiment, the Ministry of International Trade, Investment, Aviation and Maritime Affairs, the private sector and the British Embassy in Seoul who undertook due diligence to assure the quality of the testing kits and helped with local logistics."

In giving credit to those who were instrumental in sourcing and shipping the consignment, it also listed local businessmen Mr Vernie Coe and Mr Craig Merren who provided the initial contacts for the suppliers.

The logistics were supported by the Dart Corporation who arranged and funded the aircraft charter to fly the consignment from Seoul via Anchorage to the Cayman Islands.

A government statement said; "In an incredibly generous gesture, local philanthropist Mrs Susan Anne Olde OBE donated half of the amount for the purchase."

Noting that, Governor Roper said, "The generous donation from Mrs Olde and the financing of the aircraft by Dart demonstrate the real strength that we can bring to this fight when we combine government and private sector resources and expertise."

It was the Government's Chief Officer of the Ministry of International Trade, Investment, Aviation and Maritime Affairs, Eric Bush who broke the news on Wednesday morning of the arrival of the shipment of test kits earlier on Wednesday.

He had sent out a Tweet declaring: "Cayman has received enough COVID-19 testing kits to test the population more than twice!"

He called it "Another part of the collective and collaborative response to protect our people. Public and private sectors working hand in hand."

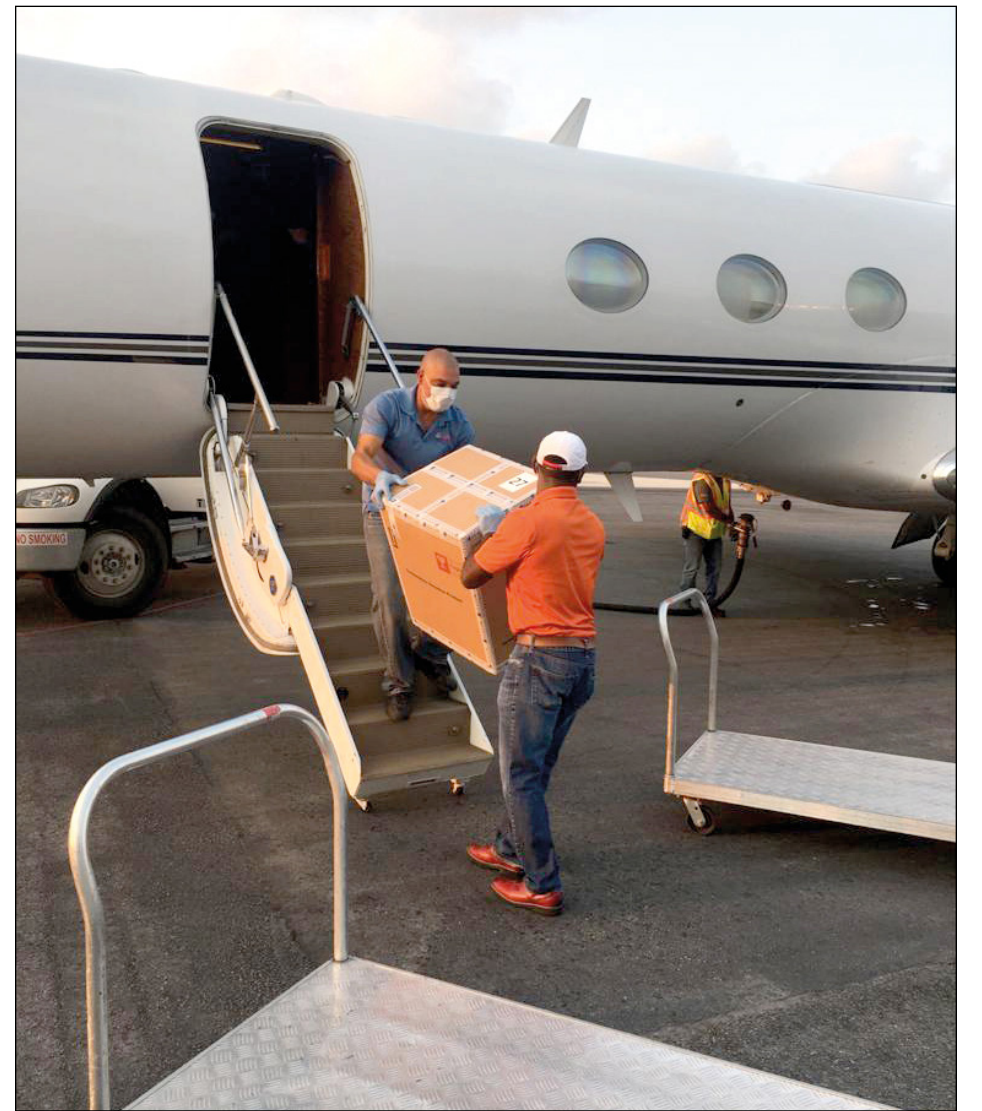

The shipment is expected to significantly upscale the volume of testing in Cayman for the coronavirus.

Chief Medical Officer Dr John Lee said testing was expected to go from around 150 tests per day to around 500 per day possibly over the next ten days.

Testing is also expected to be enhanced and coordinated across the three hospitals in the territory.

Government is also in the process of sourcing a further shipment of medical supplies, this time from China, especially linked to managing the COVID-19 crisis.

Meanwhile, it has been confirmed that a shipment of ventilators and masks sourced from the United States were intercepted by US customs officials on the basis that they the shipment violated US trade restrictions under the current COVID-19 protocols. 🌐

Musicians Comfort Community Lockdown brings out More Than Blues

Musicians in Grand Cayman who would have usually been busy with gigs around the Island have been comforting the community by serenading them with their talents during the Covid-19 lockdown.

There have been singalong sessions, live broadcasts and outright concerts online by some of the Island's brightest musical talent.

Among the well known musicians to have taken the virtual stage include Isadora Ferrao - also affectionately known as 'Miss Izzy' - whose previous engagements would have encompassed shows across Grand Cayman; from the Ritz on the West Bay Road, to the Kaibo in North Side.

Many children and families at home will have recognized Miss Izzy online from the work she has been doing with children and youngsters of all ages - teaching them about music and conducting musical workshops about the art of songwriting and the joys of expressing themselves through song.

Each day Miss Izzy has been fielding requests from an expectant audience who send her their favourite songs, which she covers seamlessly while reassuring and encouraging her listeners during their lockdown induced melancholy.

Beneil Miller is another Musical aficionado who has been making the rounds. In fact his recent video meme/mash-up/remix of a popular Reggae standard, which featured the Minister of Health and Culture, the Honourable Dwayne Seymour went viral, attracting attention from all corners of the Island and even regionally.

In the entertaining piece entitled, 'Tan a Yu Yaad', Beneil uses a snippet from comments made by the Minister during the daily briefings of the Cayman Islands Government, which update residents on the Corona Virus situation in Grand Cayman - where the population is made up by many transient expatriate workers.

Each day Minister Seymour addresses not only the locals but also translates his pleas to stay home into several different languages, among them bing patois; a dialect spoken by the many Jamaican workers who largely reside in the country on work-permit.

"Do, please Tan a Yu Yaad, if you waaa live" were the exact words of Minister Seymour, expressed in the colloquial tongue of one of Cayman's closest neighbors, as he implored persons to stay home.

Other notable languages used by the Health Minister include Spanish, Russian, Arabic, French and Tagalog (Philippines).

Musicians in Cayman also have the opportunity to win CI$1200 in separate categories, for creating an extraordinary jingle about the Covid-19 scenario; an initiative spearheaded by the Health and Culture Ministry to give performing artist - who are out of work - an opportunity to bring in some much needed income.

Categories include Public Health-Education and Awareness, Community Solidarity and Awareness, Hope and Healing. Any Genre is permitted, according to the rules outlined in a 'Jingle Open Call' flier distributed by the Ministry of Culture.

"During times of crisis, beyond the emerging headlines, bright spots often emerge through bursts of artistic creativity and talent...."

"While planting seeds of financial support during this very difficult period we are engaging your talents to produce a jingle," read the invitational flier.

Submission of mp3s for the jingles to the Ministry are to be made at jingle@gov.ky.

In addition to this flurry of musical activity, Heineken has launched Heineken Happy Hour in conjunction with event-pro.ky.

The series of shows feature a different musicians or musical offering every Friday evening, with musicians such as Danny Loops, as well as steel-pan impresarios Olujimi La Pierre and Michael Lemay.

Musicians are paid to do the Heineken Happy Hour and persons in the community have the ability to give tips during the performance via an online facility.

Other notable artists who have been doing musical sets online include husband and wife duo Chuck and Barrie and Singer/Songwriter Bob Mosley.

Representatives for the Cayman Music and Entertainment have said they are also in the process of engaging the Needs Assessment Unit to seek financial assistance for Musicians in the community who are currently out of work. 🌐

British Airways Flight Arrives in Grand Cayman

The British Airways flight arrived in Grand Cayman this afternoon. The flight carried vital supplies for the Islands including urgent pharmaceuticals, personal protective equipment and test kits.

The flight returned 58 Caymanian students and other residents to the Island. On arrival the passengers were checked by Public Health and were immediately transferred by bus to a government quarantine facility. They will remain in highly supervised isolation for 14 days, after which they will be tested for Covid-19 before being able to return to their family homes.

Before landing on Grand Cayman the BA flight made a scheduled stop in Bermuda allowing 129 Bermudans to return home and for supplies to be delivered to the Overseas Territory.

The plane will also allow for a UK advisory team to travel to the Turks and Caicos Islands, to provide medical, operational and security expertise to local authorities.

The return leg of the flight departs on Tuesday afternoon where 131 people of varying nationalities will leave Cayman for London Heathrow. The flight will make a stop in Nassau where it will collect 44 British Nationals and other European passengers who wish to be repatriated to or via the UK.

Governor Martyn Roper said: "This flight has taken considerable effort to arrange at a time when moving people and consignments around the world is a global challenge. Its arrival has enabled vital supplies to be delivered to Cayman and increases our capacity for testing. It has also allowed many people to return home to both Cayman and Bermuda. The upmost care will be taken to isolate those returning travellers to limit the risk to the population to the absolute minimum. Tomorrow's outbound flight will enable 131 people to return home from Cayman via London Heathrow. I am grateful for the support of the Premier in allowing this flight to land and to everyone who has been involved in its planning. I would like to thank Andre Ebanks and his team at the Cayman Islands Government Office in London, Matthew Forbes, head of my office and his team and British Airways for outstanding collaboration and teamwork to make this happen in difficult circumstances." 🌐 effects of the pandemic and give these Islands the best chance of recovery," he said.

He said there is ongoing contact with the various stakeholders on how best to alleviate the challenges they are facing in the current economic downturn.

"As part of our efforts to arrest the economic disruption of COVID-19, my ministry will be implementing a number of relief measures to support our micro and small businesses.

"The Government has always been proactive by making it a strategic priority to implement initiatives to support micro and small enterprises across the Islands," Min. Hew added.

The initial approach will be built around a programme of loans and grants with a number of business-support components bolted on.

The loan scheme to be managed by the Cayman Islands Development Bank, will come from a fund of $KY 5 million and will benefit businesses that are 100% Caymanian-owned.

It will provide each borrower with a fully-backed government guarantee with up to $KY 50,000 for small businesses and $KY 20,000 micro-enterprises.

They will also benefit from a six-month moratorium during which the bank will not collect principal or interest payments. The loan is repayable over five (5) years at 1% interest in the first year, subject to increase thereafter.

For the grants scheme, $KY 9 million has been set aside by Cabinet.

The Micro and Small Business Grant Programme targets three thousand vulnerable micro and small businesses and is intended to provide initial assistance of $1000.00 monthly to selected businesses for three months.

Mr Hew said, the objectives of this programme will be to provide working capital assistance to micro and small businesses affected by COVID-19 which have enough of a domestic market to render the businesses recoverable.

Government will also assist those businesses which have been heavily focused on the tourist market and have demonstrated the ability to transition to a larger domestic market.

However, they must demonstrate a willingness and capability to re-purpose and transition into a new post-COVID economic environment.

Eligible businesses must have been operational for at least twelve (12) months prior to March this year.

Training and technical support are also built into the two schemes.

The relief package is seen as the precursor to an anticipated more extensive stimulus programme being developed.

Commerce Minister Hew stated: "In the coming days and weeks, we will continue to engage in discussions with members of the business community and other stakeholders to find interventions to lessen the impact of COVID-19 on your economy and our people."

The Government's has always maintained that its priority is to preserve life and curtail the spread of the COVID-19 pandemic which is causing huge economic disruption globally.

Min. Hew reminded: "As the Honourable Premier has mentioned on a number of occasions, there are discussions taking place concerning our support for the business sector and economy.

"But as a Government, we will continue to place priority on flattening the curve of new cases so that our Islands can get back on its feet (at least) with domestic activities in the near future." 🌐

CIFS Adapt to Support Emergency Services

The closure of borders to international passengers has presented the Cayman Islands Fire Service (CIFS) with the opportunity to further support emergency service colleagues.

CIFS firefighters have been redeployed following a reduced demand for dedicated on-duty aviation cover at the Owen Roberts International Airport. As Chief Fire Officer, Paul Walker QFSM explains, "Working with colleagues from the Cayman Islands Airport Authority and the Civil Aviation Authority, we have been able to adapt our aviation crewing arrangements while maintaining appropriate fire and rescue cover for the reduced number of flights and aircraft types. Creating this capacity has enabled us to put in place arrangements to provide support to other services should the community spread of coronavirus escalate."

Greater crewing flexibility have allowed CIFS to redeploy certain officers to areas in greater demand, or to reinforce other emergency services agencies should staffing levels be impacted.

Staff from the aviation control room are undertaking 911 call centre familiarisation to ensure this essential service is adequately maintained.

Four CIFS staff are working with the Health Services Authority to join Emergency Medical Service Ambulance shifts if required to bolster support.

A firefighter with prior maritime search and rescue experience has also been redeployed to the Cayman Islands Coastguard to support increased workloads monitoring maritime related hard and soft curfew restrictions.

Chief Walker said, "Colleagues from CIFS have been flexible and supportive, understanding the concept and need for cross service business continuity. Here in the Cayman Islands, we have strong and trusted relationships with our partners from across the emergency services. It is a genuine team approach with a shared focus to maintain our 911 critical services to protect and help residents across the Cayman Islands."

He went on to say, "I would like to encourage all residents to maintain social distancing, adopt good personal hygiene and abide by the soft and hard curfew restrictions. This is the only sure way to protect our elderly and vulnerable, our families, friends and colleagues as well as ourselves from the community spread of this deadly virus. We are working for you. Stay home for us." 🌐

CELEBRATE THE GORGEOUS EARTH WITH CAYMAN TURTLE CENTRE

Earth Day is almost sneaking up on the Cayman Islands this year, as COVID-19 dominates the news and official press briefings locally and internationally each day. However, one silver lining amidst the chaos of COVID-19 is that people of the Cayman Islands and others in the rest of the world can appreciate the beauty and splendour of the gorgeous earth. It doesn't matter where people enjoy the natural environment, whether in the deep jungle, on the highest mountain, on a riverbank, or here in the world-famous beautiful Cayman Islands - the earth is amazingly gorgeous. On April 22nd, the day set aside as Earth Day, Cayman Turtle Centre invites people to take a moment and appreciate the place called home.

Cayman Turtle Conservation and Education Centre (CTCEC) is an avid proud sponsor of Earth Day activities. This year, even though COVID-19 precautionary measures have mandated that the Centre temporarily close its doors to the public, the Centre is still finding ways to support Earth Day throughout the entire month of April. "Truth be told, we put a huge emphasis on these activities in April, but we are eco-friendly and earth-conscious all year long. Last year, we were proud that our company participated in the 345-plastic-free pledge and that it was more than just a corporate pledge; most of our crew members participated in this. Also, we have been sponsors of the Cayman Islands Chamber of Commerce Earth Day Clean Ups each year," said the Centre's Chief Executive Officer, Tim Adam.

"Taking care of the environment, especially our marine environment, and our planet as a whole is always at the top of mind for the Centre," said the Centre's Chief Marketing and Merchandising Officer, Renee Howell. "We have some interactive and fun activities planned this month that are socially friendly, and appropriate given our COVID-19 circumstances. The activities will be available online through our social media channels, Facebook, Twitter and Instagram. Be sure to check those out and get social with us, for updates and to participate!"

About Cayman Turtle Conservation and Education Centre

Cayman Turtle Conservation and Education Centre (CTCEC) is a conservation, education and scientific study organisation and one of the largest tourist attractions in the Cayman Islands. Its mission and work encompass a multifaceted approach to the conservation of sea turtles and other indigenous animals. Through an extensive and proven captive breeding, rearing and release programme, the Centre's focus is on green sea turtles but also includes other at-risk species such as the Cayman Parrot. The aim is to sustain and increase the wild population of marine turtles which is furthered by sustainable harvesting of captive-reared turtles to support indigenous culinary traditions utilising turtles, thereby removing the stimulus to take turtles from the wild. The organisation advances the results through the release of captive-bred turtles into the wild, by collaborative scientific studies, and by integrating conservation education. 🌐

Stepping up to the plate

By Lindsey Turnbull

With tourism industry workers feeling the extreme hardship of necessary business closures during the COVID-19 pandemic, The Wharf and Grand Old House restaurants (which are under the same ownership) are currently providing some easing for industry workers in the form of daily meals.

The initiative, started by the restaurants' Operations Manager Luciano di Risi, is called Supporting Each Other and gives tourism workers who have lost their jobs and income a daily meal.

Luciano came up with the slogan which speaks to the heart of this initiative: 'We cannot help everyone but everyone can help someone'.

The restaurants' Guest Relationship manager Dunja Yeap explained how people can get food: "Tourism industry people severely impacted by closures can email info@wharf.ky for this service, which will operate while funds last. Interested people will receive a questionnaire back which they need to complete so that we can ascertain their eligibility."

Responding to customers and other partners who had contacted the restaurants, asking how they could donate to the cause, the restaurants say people can also use that email and also info@grandoldhouse.com to donate funds.

"We can only operate this service while we have the funding to do so, so we really need everyone who is able to, to donate funds to us directly or donate to the local distributors, such as Progressive, Uncle Clem's and Cayman Distributors on behalf of the programme," Dunja advised.

"While we would greatly appreciate direct donations of food, we cannot accept fresh produce for hygiene reasons, though if people have canned goods or bags of rice, we should be able to accept those. But it would be far better to donate financially or through the distributors, so we know that food items have been properly stored."

The restaurants' executive chefs Thushara and Christian are both working with a team of volunteers to prepare meals for people every day. The staff wear protective masks and gloves, people keep their distance and queues are well-managed, Dunja said.

"We are currently working on a week by week basis but we are getting increasing numbers of messages from people who are desperate however big or small to help us feed people in these desperate times," Dunja stated.

MOMENTS OF INSPIRATION

Hosanna-Save us Now from Coronavirus

(A brief reflection on Holy Week)

Zachariah 9
St Mathew 21:1-11

The Holy Week begins with the glorious welcome to Jesus in Jerusalem:

“Hosanna” is the resounding expression in the scripture readings and the hymns we sing on Palm Sunday. “The multitude that went before, and that followed, cried, saying, Hosanna to the son of David: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord; Hosanna in the highest” (Mathew 21:9)

Hosanna means, Save us now, deliver us now, help us now. This happened in fulfillment of the scripture “Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold your king comes to you, righteous and victorious, lowly and riding on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey” (Zachariah 9:9)

“Jesus the King” was born king, came proclaiming the kingdom of God, preached in sermons and parables about the kingdom of God and demonstrated in acts of healing, restoration and transformation. Jesus said this kingdom is amongst us whenever we experience God’s power in our midst. Now this king comes to you. “Your king comes to you, Rejoice greatly”. This king is humble, meek, gentle and comes to save us riding on a donkey a symbol of peace. This king is righteous and victorious. Jesus also said that that his kingdom is both here and now as well as the kingdom to come. He taught us to pray “thy kingdom come”. To pilate

Jesus said his kingdom is not of this world.

“Crucify him” - There was a misunderstanding of this king and his kingdom. To begin with they sang Hosannas (save us now). The people wanted salvation and deliverance now, immediately from the oppression, exploitation and tyranny of the Roman Empire. Jesus, instead of marching in the direction to occupy the King’s throne by overthrowing the establishment, Jesus took the direction to the Temple. There Jesus cleansed the temple of its corruption and sin. The people were disappointed. Therefore, they betrayed him, abandoned him and shouted ‘crucify him’. Even today in the midst of Coronavirus, deaths increasing, virus spreading, our Hosannas (save us now) may turn out to be “crucify” him.

“Your King Comes To You” Jesus is both personal and individual who comes to us as a shepherd, servant and sacrificial Lamb of God that takes away my sin as well as the sins of the whole world. “God so loved the world that he gave his one and only begotten son, that whosoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life”. Jesus died on the cross to take away my sin and the sins of the whole world. My king comes to me as my savior, my redeemer, my healer and to grant me Eternal Life. Also to transform the whole of creation.

Coronavirus is not our enemy. There is no war on Coronavirus. It is nobody’s sin that we are in a pandemic. Jesus looking at the blind man said, “Neither this man nor his parents sinned, but that the works of God should be made manifest in him”. We are called to make God’s works revealed/manifest and to glorify God in the midst of coronavirus. Through study of the word of God, meditation, praise, prayer, intercession, supplication and experiencing the very presence of God in us, we proclaim God’s Glory. Jesus Cleanses the temple. Let us allow him to cleanse us as Paul says “Know ye not you are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you” 1Corinthians 3:16. Let this Holy Week be a time of confession, repentance, cleansing and regeneration to live for God, experience His Glory in the midst of Coronavirus. Quarantine and social distancing is God given opportunity to experience God with us “Be still, and know that I am God; I will be exalted among nations, I will be exalted in the earth. The Lord Almighty is with us; the God of Jacob is our fortress” Psalm 46:10 and 11. “Be silent, O all flesh, before the Lord: for He is aroused from His holy habitation” Zachariah 2:13. May God be with us, heal and bless us.

“A source of comfort in a troubled time”

Are you sure your dinner is healthy?

This is your year to finally lose the weight and get fit...and it all starts with dinner.

You may be exercising hard, getting plenty of sleep and staying diligent in your hydration, but if you're eating the wrong food for dinner then sadly you will never reach your goals.

Most dinners are too high in calories to allow you to steadily lose weight and progress towards your ideal body. This goes for restaurant dinners as well as homecooked meals.

However, the good news is that it is possible to enjoy wholesome, fitness dinners that support your fat loss results whether out-to-eat or cooking at home.

I want to make this as simple as possible for you so that you'll actually use it to transform the way that you select your nightly meal. Rather than worrying about calories and measurements simply ask these 3 questions before you sit down to eat your next meal and visualize a clock...

Fat Burning Question #1: Is there Lean Protein?

Your meal should start with a lean source of high-quality protein that's cooked in a healthy way. Choose protein that has been grilled, baked, broiled or steamed. Fish, chicken, turkey, egg, lean red meat and beans all make great choices.

Picture your plate as a clock and fill it from 12 o'clock to 4 o'clock with your choice of protein. This is roughly 1/3 of your plate.

Fat Burning Question #2: Is it mostly Fibrous Veggies/Greens?

Next comes fibrous veggies and greens. Fiber is a huge part of eating healthy and being lean. Fibrous foods will fill you up while delivering vitamins and nutrient in a low-calorie package. Salads and seasonal vegetable make perfect choices for your fat burning meal.

Just be sure to watch out for heavy dressings or fattening cooking methods that may add additional calories to the dish.

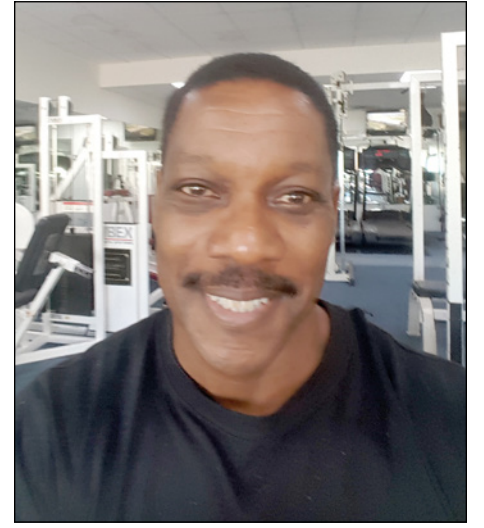

On your plate fill between 4 o'clock and 10 o'clock with these fibrous veggies and greens. This is roughly half of your plate.

Fat Burning Question #3: Is the Starch in Moderation?

Are you gaining weight or not able to lose weight? Chances are your meals are filled with too many starches, including potatoes, pasta, rice, grains and bread products. To make these starches more fattening, they are often cooked with added fats that increase the calorie count. For your starch stick with wholesome, complex carbs like sweet potatoes, brown rice, sprouted grains and legumes.

On your plate fill between 10 o'clock and 12 o'clock with these wholesome starches. This is the smallest portion on your plate for a reason, as these starchy carbs are calorie-dense and just a little goes a long way. Fight the urge to push the line by allowing yourself to eat more starches than you need.

I hope that these 3 simple questions make it easier for you to choose your next fat burning meal by cutting through some of the confusion. While there are certainly more specific, measured meal plans that lead to body transformation success, this guide is meant to keep you on track when you aren't sure what you should be eating.

IDEAL FOR THESE TIMES

They are extremely delicious and packed with an abundance of nutrients. Though small in nature, one will not be able to detect the health benefits of this wonder fruit - MANDARIN. Thought to have originated in China, they are fruits of an evergreen shrub native to Asia. Clementine, Tangor and Satsuma are some of the common varieties that people all over the world enjoy, and here are the reasons why:

1. Research has shown that this exotic fruit can lower the risk of liver cancer. This is because of the high presence of carotenoids, and vitamin A.

2. They are packed with high levels of vitamin C, renowned for numerous health benefits. This vitamin helps fight a number of unstable molecules in our bodies called free radicals. The antioxidants present disarm free radicals and prevent cellular damage.

3. They also help lower blood pressure as they contain high levels of potassium which aids in lowering the pressure. It keeps the blood flow smoothly along through the arteries, thereby lowering the pressure.

4. The fruit also aids significantly in weight loss as it is packed with fiber. Fiber rich foods keep the stomach fuller for a longer period of time. Doctors have found that consuming this fruit regularly has an effect on lowering insulin.

5. Regular intake of this juice aids the healthy nature of the skin. Its antioxidants protect the skin from the UV rays, and help the skin to resist the damage caused by free radicals. It has also been shown to reduce ageing features such as wrinkles, fine lines and blemishes.

My family and I especially our son enjoys this fruit on a regular basis. Just peel off the skin, and there you have one of the healthiest and most delicious fruit. So, at this time make sure it's a must when you check in at the supermarket. 🌐

GLOBAL NEWS BRIEFS

Canada fuming as US get its face masks

The tense relationship between Canada and the United States has worsened after a Canadian politician claimed that President Donald Trump has blocked the delivery of three million face masks designed to help fight the coronavirus outbreak.

The premier of Ontario, Canada's largest province made the accusation. Doug Ford told Global News the incident had happened over the weekend and described it as "absolutely unacceptable". He also said the province's stock of personal protective equipment would run out in a week.

Allies of the US are complaining about what they call its "Wild West" tactics in outbidding or blocking shipments to buyers who have already signed deals for medical equipment.

Trump has asked manufacturing firm 3M Co to pause the exports of domestically produced respirator masks to Canada and some Latin American countries.

Canada's Prime Minister Justin Trudeau sidestepped reporters' questions about the incident on Monday, saying his government was in productive talks with the US and adding: "We expect those shipments to be delivered."

► Doug Ford has accused the US of theft of face masks

Canada's Deputy Prime Minister Chrystia Freeland told reporters that Ottawa was aware of "some difficulties" shipping the masks across the border and would do all it could to help.

"We are working intensely with the United States to ensure that all the masks that have been bought can be exported to Canada," she said when asked about Ford's complaint.

"We have had positive conversations and we are continuing to work to settle this matter," she added.

The US embassy in Ottawa was not immediately available for comment. Canada's death toll had risen to over 300 with the number of positive cases over 16,000. 🌐

Filipino shot dead over virus curfew

The Philippines is allowing police to shoot dead anyone not adhering to the coronavirus curfew and one man has already lost his life. He was shot dead after he was scolded by a health official for not wearing a face mask.

The 63-year-old flew into a rage after receiving the warning from the health care worker in the town of Nasipit in south Philippines.

He is thought to have been drunk at the time, a police report claimed. The man grabbed a scythe and began threatening officials with it at the coronavirus checkpoint.

"The suspect was cautioned by a village health worker ... for not wearing a face mask," the report said. "But the suspect got angry, uttering provoking words and eventually attacked the personnel using a scythe."

A police officer shot him dead after reportedly trying to calm him.

The death is the first coronavirus related killing to take place in the country after President Rodrigo Duterte warned anyone not following lockdown measures would be shot. In a televised address last week the controversial leader said it was vital everyone cooperates and follows home quarantine measures.

► Nasipit in south Philippines is where the man was shot dead

He also said the abuse of medical workers was a serious crime that would not be tolerated.

Amnesty International condemned the remarks as "deeply alarming" and said they follow reports of inhumane punishments for lawbreakers of the coronavirus lockdown, such as being detained in dog cages and sitting for hours in the sun.

There have been 3,660 confirmed cases of the coronavirus in the Philippines and 414 deaths. 🌐

Cuba using homeopathy for virus recovery

Cuba will shortly begin mass distributing a new medication which it has developed in a homeopathic way to help recovery from coronavirus.

PREVENGOVIR, a homeopathic immunological booster, is being distributed to citizens to help prevent viral infections like Covid-19 and other common flus, Dr Francisco Duran, Director of Epidemiology, announced.

Duran explained PREVENGOVIR was first applied to risk groups in isolation centres, elderly and mother-infant homes, and hospitals caring for positive and suspected Covid-19 patients.

Homeopathy is a system of alternative medicine created in 1796 by Samuel Hahnemann based on his doctrine of 'the similar cures the similar'. It has been developed in Cuba in the past 30 years with the help of China, Vietnam and India. There are pharmacies solely dedicated to homeopathic and natural medicines.

Initial stats show that the booster is helping Covid-19 sufferers to recover quicker, Duran said. 🌐

► Rafael Callejas died in Atlanta

Ex-Honduras president in FIFA bribes dies

A former president of Honduras who was convicted in the FIFA soccer bribery scandal died in the United States on Saturday.

Rafael Callejas governed Honduras from 1990 to 1994, but he was better known for soliciting hundreds of thousands of dollars in bribes in the wide-ranging FIFA soccer scandal over lucrative broadcast rights.

Callejas, 76, pleaded guilty in 2016 and was being held at a prison in Atlanta when he died.

Current Honduran President Juan Orlando Hernandez confirmed Callejas' death, adding on his Twitter account that "we enormously regret" the loss of the former leader. Hernandez said Callejas is survived by his wife, children and grandchildren.

No cause of death was given, but Callejas had reportedly suffered from leukaemia.

After leaving office, Callejas was once a member of FIFA's television and marketing committee.

► Dr Francisco Duran's homeopathic medicine helps fight the virus

He pleaded guilty to racketeering conspiracy and wire fraud conspiracy in a New York federal court. He said he distributed a significant portion of his bribes to delegates of the Honduran soccer federation so he could remain its president, a position he held from 2002 to last August.

Callejas said he abused his powerful position in the soccer world to award contracts to Media World, a Miami-based sports marketing company that paid bribes through US bank accounts to the foreign bank accounts of Callejas and a co-conspirator. 🌐

Venezuela boat sinks after ramming cruiser

A Venezuelan navy coastal patrol boat sank in the Caribbean after allegedly ramming a cruise ship that it had ordered to change direction.

The owners of the Portuguese-flagged RCGS Resolute said the naval vessel Naiguata also fired shots in an "act of aggression in international waters".

The collision left the cruise ship, which has a reinforced hull for sailing in icy waters, with only minor damage. Venezuela accused the Resolute of an act of "aggression and piracy".

It also said it "did not rule out" that the cruise ship "was transporting mercenaries to attack military bases in Venezuela".

President Nicolás Maduro has previously accused the United States and other countries of plotting to overthrow him.

The incident took place near La Tortuga Island, a Venezuelan federal dependency, on 30 March.

Columbia Cruise Services, which operates the Resolute, said the cruise ship had been carrying out routine engine maintenance in international waters more than 13 nautical miles (24km) from La Tortuga.

A statement from the Hamburg-based company said that shortly after midnight, the Naiguata radioed the Resolute, questioning its intentions, and ordered the captain to follow it to a port on Isla Margarita, to the east.

Although the Resolute - a purpose-built polar expedition vessel - suffered minor damage, the patrol boat began taking on water after hitting its bulbous bow.

The Resolute remained in the area for more than an hour and contacted rescue co-ordinators on the Dutch Caribbean island of Curaçao. All attempts to contact the Naiguata went unanswered and the Resolute eventually sailed to Willemstad on Curaçao. 🌐

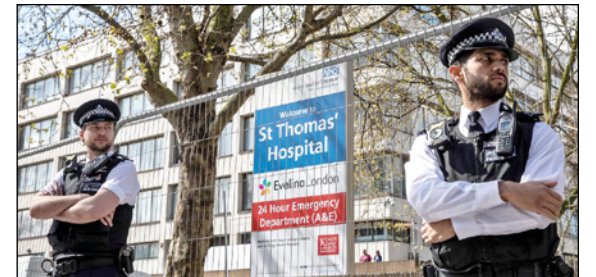

Johnson grateful for NHS care

As the UK Prime Minister Boris Johnson recovers from suffering from coronavirus symptoms, his appreciation of the National Health Service has increased exponentially. Johnson, 55, was in intensive care in St Thomas' Hospital from Monday and is making slow progress. He is grateful not just for the NHS staff but also for the swathes of volunteers who are helping health workers.

Johnson's pregnant fiancée, Carrie Symonds, has also tested positive for coronavirus. People who volunteered to support the NHS in England during the coronavirus crisis are being sent details of what tasks they can do to help. More than 750,000 people signed up for the "volunteer army" - three times the government's original target - to help relieve pressure on the NHS. They will support 2.5 million people who are considered at risk.

The volunteers may have to deliver food and medicines, drive patients to appointments and phone the isolated.

The process is being managed through a mobile app called GoodSam, where health professionals, pharmacists, and local authorities can upload requests for help.

► Boris Johnson is recovering at St Thomas' Hospital, London

Thousands of approved volunteers can pick which tasks they want to complete in their local area. Volunteers switch their app to "on duty" to show when they are available.

The Royal Voluntary Service, the charity helping co-ordinate the scheme, have completed checks on the applications.

One of the many to sign up was teacher Stacey Walsh, from Banbury, Oxfordshire, who is still teaching but wants to volunteer in her spare time.

She said: "I've said I'll do whatever's needed. I'm a very social person so being able to provide people who are isolated with support over the telephone - that's something that I really am looking forward to."

"It's really important as public sector workers we stand alongside the NHS. There is a unity between us so I'm really happy that I can help." 🌐

COVID-19: Jamaica Government Extends Quarantine for Community Where First Victim Stayed

Prime Minister Andrew Holness has announced that a community that had been quarantined following the first reported death from the novel Coronavirus (COVID-19), will remain under quarantine for another two weeks.

He said residents of Corn Piece Settlement in the southern parish of Clarendon will remain under quarantine for another 14 days, as government tries to contain the spread of COVID-19 in the island.

Jamaica has 58 confirmed cases of COVID-19. The cases include three deaths.

The first was that of a 79-year-old man who travelled to Jamaica from New York on March 12. The quarantine of Corn Piece was implemented after members of the elderly man's family, who reside there, refused to comply with the requests of the public health team on the ground to remain at home.

It is believed that the victim stayed in the community during the period of his illness and had contact with several people living there. At least six confirmed COVID-19 cases were connected to him.

Prime Minister Holness said the quarantine has been extended on the advice of the Ministry of Health and Wellness.

"It is clear why this is necessary. We definitely have to ensure that there is containment in that area," he said.

Meantime, the Prime Minister has also announced that a special Cabinet unit has been established to further bolster the Government's strategies to contain the spread of COVID-19.

He said the unit will undertake detailed reviews and deliberations of engagements and decisions by Ministries and the Government's response, in general, to COVID-19. Holness said members have already held their first meeting.

"[With this group,] we are better able to manage [and] spend quality time thrashing out all the details of decisions that have to be made. [The unit, which will] focus on areas that are not adequately covered by one particular Ministry, is charged with working in ensuring that those functions that are not in the remit of a particular Ministry, have no slips in implementation," he said.

► Jamaica Prime Minister Andrew Holness

Holness said the group will, additionally, offer support in relation to policy implementation.

"We need to be spending time at the policy level to get [that aspect] correct.

We have to ensure that we are reviewing, monitoring and evaluating the implementing arms, making sure that [where there are] bureaucratic obstacles, those are removed," the Prime Minister added.

COVID-19: Barbados Records First Death; Six Patients Released From Isolation Centres

An elderly man, whose wife has also tested positive for the novel Coronavirus (COVID-19), is the first person to die in Barbados from the viral illness.

At a press conference where it was also disclosed that six others who had tested positive have recovered and were released from government isolation centres, Minister of Health and Wellness Lt. Col. Jeffrey Bostic said the deceased was an 81-year-old Barbadian who travelled to the United Kingdom and returned to Barbados on March 22.

He died hours after he and his 83-year-old wife were tested for COVID-19 after reporting symptoms on Saturday.

Bostic said the elderly man, who had underlying medical conditions, deteriorated rapidly after being admitted into care. Prior to being admitted, he was neither in home quarantine nor at any of government's quarantine/isolation facilities.

"I was informed of his death late [Saturday] night from COVID-19-related pneumonia and complications of diabetes," the Health Minister said.

The man was one of the 56 cases confirmed in the island since March 16. He and his wife were among four people who got back positive tests on Saturday. The other two were: the seven-year-old daughter of another person who had tested positive for the virus, and a 21-year-old woman who returned from the United Kingdom on March 16.

Isolation Facilities Manager, Dr Corey Forde, who is also Head of the Infectious Disease Programme at the Queen Elizabeth Hospital, said the majority of the 49 patients still at government isolation centres are in stable condition.

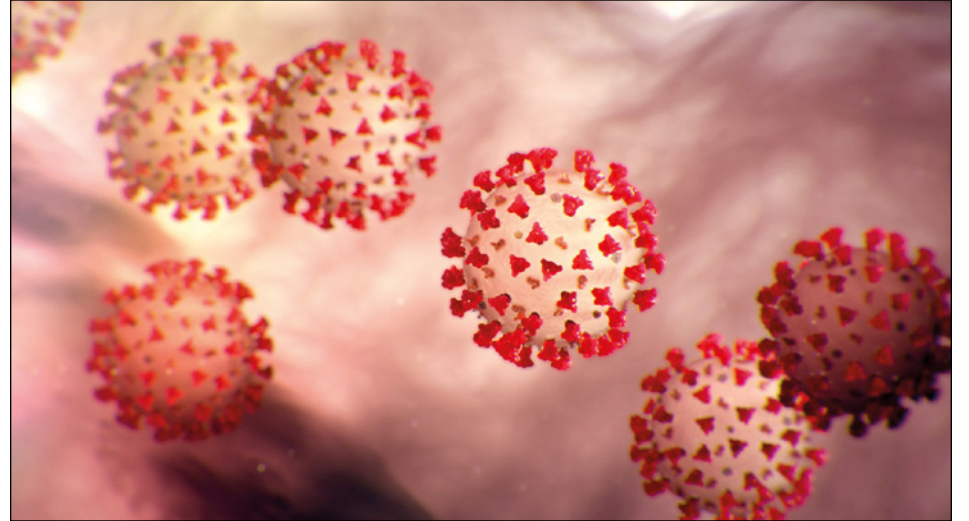

Meantime, COVID-19 Czar Richard Carter has urged Barbadians to let the first COVID-19 death be a sobering reminder about the potential danger of the virus and the risk of age and underlying health conditions.

But he also suggested that the first release of patients, who have emerged as cured of COVID-19, shows that the virus is not a death sentence and with care and appropriate treatment, people can survive.

The six patients to recover from COVID-19 left isolation facilities yesterday after two consecutive negative tests over the last two days, which is in keeping with international testing and standards. Patients require two negative screens, which are done 24-hours apart, to be considered recovered from the illness.

Minister Bostic said the recovery of the patients was a testament to the quality of care and treatment provided by the country's medical teams, adding: "We celebrate this important milestone with these patients and their families with whom they can now be reunited."

He expressed gratitude to the medical professionals, who, he noted, at great personal risk to themselves, continue to care for and treat those infected with COVID-19.

"These brave Barbadians, the other public health staff directly involved in the Covid-19 response and the entire cohort of staff working in the public and private sectors to maintain the high-quality health care that Barbados has become known for, deserve our support, our prayers and our deepest respect," the Health Minister said.

Barbadians are currently under a 24-hour curfew which will remain in effect until midnight on April 14. They are required to stay at home unless they need to get food at village shops or bread at bakeries which are open for a specified period each day; to go to the pharmacy; or to seek medical care.

However, Carter expressed concern that too many people were still not heeding the instruction to stay inside.

"We still continue to see a level of irresponsible behavior, albeit from a minority of Barbadians Persons who failed to follow the advice, even though there may be a small minority, that minority is putting the rest of us at risk," he said.

"It is important that we do everything possible not to put additional strain on our healthcare system by staying off the road and staying at home, and following the public health advice, which has been given at every opportunity that we have spoken."

COVID-19: Barbados Reports Second Death and Increase in Cases to 60

Less than 24 hours after Minister of Health and Wellness Lt. Col. Jeffrey Bostic reported the first fatality from the novel Coronavirus (COVID-19), a second person has died. It was also reported that the total number of cases recorded in the island has now reached 60.

The Ministry of Health and Wellness this evening disclosed that a 74-year-old man with underlying medical conditions, died this morning.

He tested positive for COVID-19 on March 20 and had been in isolation since his diagnosis.

A statement from the Ministry said the man was infected after coming into contact with another COVID-19 positive individual.

The first person to have died from COVID-19 in Barbados was an 81-year-old man who travelled to the United Kingdom and returned to Barbados on March 22. He died Saturday night, after he and his 83-year-old wife tested positive for the virus when they reported symptoms earlier in the day.

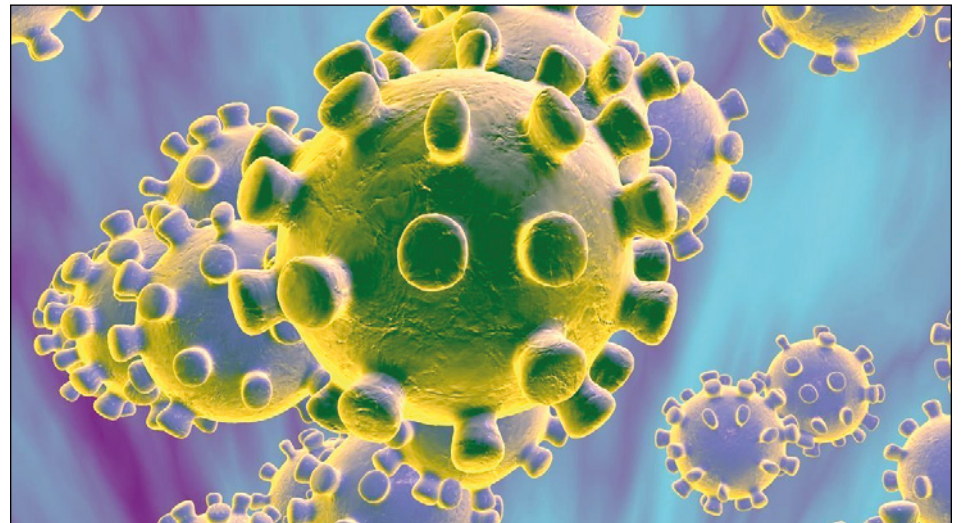

Health Minister Lt. Col. Jeffrey Bostic said the elderly man died of COVID-19-related pneumonia and complications of diabetes.

Acting Chief Medical Officer Dr Anton Best expressed sympathy, on behalf of the Government and people of Barbados, to the family and friends of the latest victim.

He said he was saddened that another Barbadian had succumbed to the viral illness, and it was particularly difficult to hear of a second death so soon after the first.

"This is a sombre time for our country as we lose another person to this deadly disease. I ask our citizens to remain strong and to continue to be vigilant every day, taking every precaution to protect themselves against this illness," he said.

Dr Best further appealed to residents to observe the curfew currently in place, by staying off the streets, to help health officials contain the spread of COVID-19.

Four additional people tested positive for COVID-19 yesterday, bringing the total number of persons who have tested positive for the viral illness since March 16 to 60 – 31 females and 29 males – ranging in age from seven to 95.

Of those, 52 remain in isolation, six have been released and two have died.

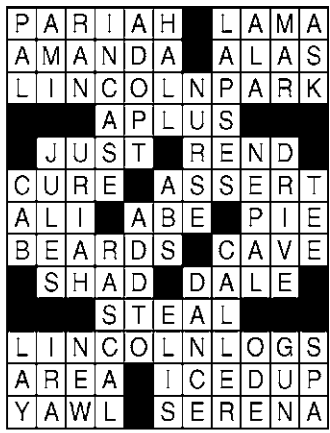

The new cases include a 95-year-old male who is critically ill. The others are a 47-year-old female, who was infected by a known contact, a 57-year-old female and an 84-year-old woman who travelled abroad.

A total of 557 tests have been carried out since testing started on February 11.
