PHILLIP EBANKS RUNS INDEPENDENTLY FOR RED BAY

Cayman Conversations

Attorney and former police superintendent Phillip Ebanks has thrown his hat in the ring as an independent candidate for the Red Bay seat in the April 30th election.

In an appearance on the Caymanian Times podcast Cayman Conversations with Ralph Lewis, Mr Ebanks said even though he chose to run as an independent candidate, he is nonetheless prepared to work within a team as a parliamentarian or minister.

“It seemed to me that the most straightforward way for me to present myself to the country was as an independent. I present myself an independent on the basis that it seems fairly clear to me, given that we don’t have this well-entrenched form of party system in the country, that it looks like we’re going to be heading towards another coalition government.”

Mr Ebanks who has a combined 40 years experience as a practising attorney and in law enforcement, said he brings a practical solutions-oriented perspective to politics both at the district and national levels.

He cites Cayman’s residency and citizenship system as being in need of urgent overhaul alongside immigration and employment policies.

are advertised only two weeks before a work permit expires be reviewed.

He strongly advocates for a six-month window in order to give Caymanians a better shot at those jobs rather than resort to overseas recruiting as a norm.

“We still have the issue of feeling that Caymanians do not get the best opportunities to enter the workforce, but more importantly, to progress within the workforce, to get the better jobs and the opportunity to thrive,” he stated.

Saying there’s a need to rebalance this situation, Mr Ebanks proposes that the current method where jobs

“There is scope for us to ensure that there’s an avenue available to Caymanians to progress. And I think the way to handle that is through the work permit system, to make sure that when permits are issued and they’re coming up to renewal, there is a way and an avenue for advertisement...not two weeks in advance, but six months in advance.

Mr Ebanks is worried that under the current system, “careers are being stifled”.

He is also campaigning to overhaul inconsistencies in the residency and citizenship system. The Red Bay independent candidate feels however that this issue must be handled with due care and attention.

“We must have real immigration reform and real changing and solidification of policy that allows us to achieve that end. It is a big subject, and it has a variety of elements to it, including, how long people should wait for permanent residency, how many statuses we should be giving out and that type of thing. And I think we really need to have an open conversation about that and find a way forward to do that. And I think the best way to do that is to handle that calmly, competently, once we have a new government in place. It’s not the issue that you’re going to resolve in four weeks before an election.”

Another big concern for Mr Ebanks has is that of access to housing for Caymanians, and he has some ideas how to resolve the shortage.

“We have a major issue there with that. Not enough people are able to get housing. And we need to think bigger in terms of how we’re producing housing in the country. There are many good ideas out there...For example, one of the ideas, I think is worth pursuing is to make sure that we try to enter more public-private partnerships in producing houses in the volume that the population can get access to housing.”

Phillip Ebanks, the independent candidate for Red Bay is vying for the seat last held by retiring Speaker and former premier Alden McLaughlin.

COUNTDOWN TO VOTING DAY: THE RACE FOR PARLIAMENT IS ON

Staff Writer

Cayman's election campaign season in a sense officially kicked off on Nomination Day Monday March 3rd with 59 candidates registered for the April 30th general election.

Three parties and 24 independents will challenge for the 19 seats in the Parliament, seeking to form or be a part of a majority of at least twelve to form the next government.

There are 35 candidates across the three established parties, almost making it the first time so many constituted political parties are contesting the polls - a significant departure from political traditions in Cayman.

This raises the question of whether the long-held resistance to the party system in Cayman politics is now fading.

The People's Progressive Movement (PPM/Progressives) led by Joey Hew is fielding 13 candidates, The Caymanian Community Party(TCCP) helmed by Andre Ebanks - 10, and the Cayman Islands National Party(CINP) of Dan Scott - 12.

West Bay North, Red Bay, East End and Cayman Brac East have the most candidates with five candidates each running in those districts.

An interesting battle is shaping for the Cayman Brac East seat held by current United People's Movement(UPM) Premier Juliana O'Connor-Connolly who is running as a PPM candidate at the same time.

Her last-minute confirmation as a candidate for the Progressives sent shockwaves throughout the political establishment.

While this raises some questions about constitutionality, the political practicalities are that her UPM government label, though not a formal political party, is effectively rendered obsolete.

However, some questions remain in the governing period up to the formation of the next government over whether this means the PPM and UPM are in a de facto coalition until then as two other UPM ministers - Kenneth Bryan and Dwayne Seymour - are also on the PPM slate.

The Cayman Brac East seat is also in the crosshairs of Dan Scott, the leader of the new Cayman Islands National Party(CINP). The other three candidates in that district are independents; Ruth Ann Bodden, James Albert Christian, and Maxine Avon McCoy-Moore.

In Cayman Brac West and Little Cayman, the retirement from politics of PPM's Moses Kirkconnell means that either Nickolas DaCosta (CNIP) or independent Lonny Lee Tibbetts will emerge as MP. The PPM is not fielding a candidate.

For West Bay North four of the five candidates are independents competing for the seat vacated by independent (and ex-PACT and UPM Cabinet member) Bernie

Bush who is out of the race. Independents Jermaine Ebanks-Hurlston, Shakeina S Bush, Rolston "Rollie" Anglin, and Michael Lemay, along with CINP's Jordon D Rivers are vying to be the district's MP.

Red Bay, the seat held by former PPM Premier and current Speaker of Parliament Sir Alden McLaughlin will also have a new representative in Parliament after Sir Alden announced his retirement from competitive politics. The party hopes to retain that seat with PPM party stalwart Roy Tatum facing off against Melrose Whitelocke (TCCP) and independents Dawn Thomas, Leon Gould, and Phillip Ebanks.

With PPM's Barbara Conolly also quitting politics, the George Town South seat is also wide open. The candidates there are independent Alric Lindsay, Gary "Peanut" Ruddy, and Craig "Festa" Frederick.

Another PPM incumbent departure this one in George Town West will also result in a new MP for that district. With David Wight quitting politics that seat is now up for grabs between his PPM replacement Pearlina L. McGaw-Lumsden, Craig T Merren of the CINP, and independents Hunter J. Walton and Tyree Malcolm Hernandez.

With campaigning now hitting high gear spending limits are imposed to a maximum of CI$40,000 per candidate (as opposed to a political party).

"The maximum amount of election expenses to be incurred in respect of a candidate at an election shall be forty thousand dollars" as specified in the Elections Act 2022 (S. 67),

When factored across the three parties with their combined 35 candidates and the 24 independents, even if the individual ceiling of CI$40,000 is not reached in all cases, the trickle-through effect in the economy is still expected to be considerable.

TCCP Leader André Ebanks said the party's team reflects the right mix of experienced public servants and fresh voices, ensuring Cayman has the leadership it needs to move forward responsibly.

"We've brought together a team that understands the challenges our people face and is committed to real solutions," Ebanks said. "Our candidates know that leadership isn't about self-interest — it's about building stronger, connected communities where every Caymanian has a fair chance to succeed."

The TCCP is deeply committed to en-sureing that every candidate reflects the party's core values, objectives, and vision for a stronger Cayman Islands. Before aligning with any candidate, the party engages in careful deliberation and due diligence, assessing not only their experience and capabilities but, more importantly, their commitment to principled leadership, community engagement, and putting all Caymanians first.

"We are not just selecting candidates — we are building a team that shares a common purpose and a deep sense of responsibility to the Caymanian people," Ebanks said. "Every individual standing with the TCCP believes in fairness, responsible leadership, and putting country above self-interest. That unity of purpose is what sets us apart."

He said the TCCP offers voters a genuine alternative — a leadership team that is not stuck in the past like the Progressives (PPM) nor lacking the experience needed to govern like the Cayman Islands New Party (CINP).

"Caymanians deserve strong, capable leadership — not the same old politics and not uncertainty," he said. "The TCCP brings the right mix of proven governance and new energy to guide our country forward in a fair, responsible, and inclusive way."

The TCCP also called on all parties and candidates to commit to a respectful and issue-focused election campaign, free of personal attacks and distractions.

“The Cayman Islands deserves an election where leaders put forward ideas, not insults,” Ebanks said. “We urge all candidates to focus on what truly matters —shared better opportunities, responsible economic growth, and a stronger, more unified community.”

Since its launch, the TCCP has seen an overwhelming groundswell of public support, reflecting the growing demand for leadership that puts people first. The party’s message of fairness, responsible governance, and community-driven progress has resonated across the Cayman Islands, drawing strong engagement from voters eager for a new approach.

“The response from Caymanians has been inspiring,” Ebanks said. “People are ready for leadership that listens, that engages, and that truly represents their interests. This movement is powered by the community, and we are humbled by the trust and enthusiasm we’ve received.”

With the official nomination process complete, TCCP is eager to continue engaging with voters across all districts, listening to their concerns, and working towards a Cayman that prioritises fairness, opportunity, and community-driven leadership.

Honouring Women Month International Women's Day Remarks 2025

Theme: #AccelerateAction

► JADE PITCAIRN (DOS)

► MERTA DAY (DOS)

► LAVERNE EBANKS (DOS)

Throughout the month of March, we celebrate the incredible successes and unwavering determination of women across our islands and beyond. At the Department of Sports, we are proud to place even greater emphasis during this time on inspiring, educating, and empowering women and girls — showcasing the profound impact that sports and physical activity can have on their lives.

Recognizing the achievements of women and girls is vital. Equally important is ensuring we continue to break down barriers and support initiatives that foster greater participation in sports and physical wellness for all. This month, we are reminded that #AccelerateAction means actively creating opportunities, amplifying voices, and driving progress toward gender equality. It holds institutions accountable, urging them to deliver on their commitments, with greater speed and efficiency. It calls for urgency and transformative change.

The resilience and strength shown by women and girls, especially in the years following COVID-19, cannot be overstated. Many faced immense pressures, self-doubt, and uncertainty yet they continue to push forward. Some found their footing more easily than others, but every experience matters, and every story is important. We honor them all.

In the coming weeks, we will highlight voices from across our community — leaders, athletes, coaches, and supporters — who are driving sports forward, both recreationally and competitively. We hope these stories will inspire others to step up, get involved, and #AccelerateAction in their own way.

As the global theme reminds us, International Women's Day is not limited to any one country, group, or organization — it belongs to everyone, everywhere.

Former National Athlete and Acting Assistant Director of Sports, Laverne Ebanks had this to say: "This International Women's Day, we celebrate the resilience, courage, and accomplishments of women everywhere. Women have led change in traditionally male-dominated fields, spearheaded social justice move- ments, and broken barriers with determination and strength. As we mark this important occasion, let us renew our commitment to empowering women, amplifying their voices, and creating a more inclusive, equitable future for all. By celebrating past achievements and embracing present challenges, we can work together toward a world where every woman has the opportunity to thrive."

National Squash Athlete and Assistant Coach at Department of Sports, Jade Pitcairn had this to say: This International Women's Day 2025, we honor the brilliance, resilience, and unstoppable spirit of women everywhere! #AccelerateAction is more than a theme—it's a movement to drive faster progress, break barriers, and create a world where every woman and girl has the opportunity to thrive. Women are leading, innovating, and shaping the future in every field, and today, we celebrate their achievements, amplify their voices, and commit to pushing forward with even greater strength. Together, let's turn momentum into lasting change.

A Collective Call to Action: We extend heartfelt thanks to the women and girls who have dedicated their time, energy, and talents to advancing sports and wellness in our islands. Their efforts have not gone unnoticed. However, the journey is far from over. To #AccelerateAction, we must ensure that women and girls have access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to achieve even more — and in doing so, inspire others to follow.

We also thank the many residents and stakeholders who continue to champion gender inclusion and equality. We encourage you to keep inviting others to join you — whether it's on the field, at the gym, or in your community initiatives — because collective action drives real change. Let's #AccelerateAction together.

As one powerful quote reminds us: "A woman is human. She is not better, wiser, stronger, more intelligent, or more responsible than a man. Likewise, she is never less. Equality should be a given."

The responsibility is ours — every day in every action we take. When we witness inequality, we must speak up and take action. Every time.

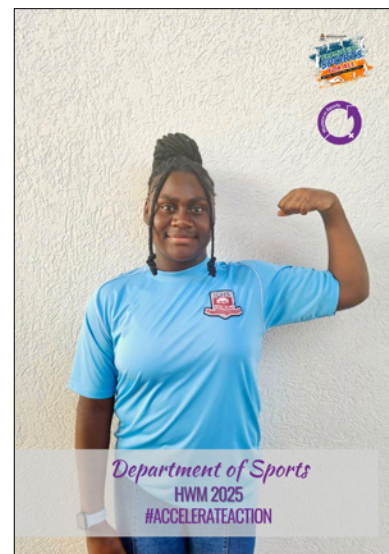

Building a Brighter Future: Together, we can build a Cayman Islands where women and men, girls and boys, all have equal opportunities — not just in sports, but in every aspect of life. This vision requires commitment, unity, and the collective will of our entire community. When women thrive, our families, communities, and society as a whole reap the benefits.

This March, let us Accelerate Action — for gender equality, for inclusion, and for a brighter, more equitable future for all.

Visitor numbers on the up

Cayman saw 41,418 stayover visitors in January 2025, an increase of 7.7% year over year and the second-best January in recorded history. This was setting the destination on pace for a strong 2025, government said.

Tourism Minister Kenneth Bryan attributed January's record numbers to the resilience of the Cayman Islands tourism industry and he said they looked forward to seeing an increase in visitation throughout 2025.

The United States continued to show steady growth with visitor numbers increasing by 8.8% compared to January 2024. Visitors from the Northeast, Midwest and South of the United States recorded growth in visitation. This was as a result of seat capacity increases in the key markets of Miami via American Airlines, Boston via JetBlue and Chicago via United Airlines and new service in Orlando via Southwest and Minneapolis/St. Paul via Delta Air Lines.

The DOT said the seat capacity increase and new services from the United States came about because of a dedicated aviation strategy including a Q4 2024 investment in geotargeted advertising campaigns with airline partners to drive visitation from key US gateways.

Canada remained a key market for visitation showing "robust growth" with its visitor numbers increasing by 10.3% compared to January 2024, representing more than 10% of the total stayover arrivals for January 2025.

However, in the UK & Ireland, January arrivals declined by 7.7% and the number of visitors from Europe were 6.6% lower than the same period in 2024. Latin America represented marginal growth at 1.2%.

Director of Tourism Rosa Harris stated: "This achievement is a testament to our strategic and steady approach to rebuilding visitor confidence and demand through our marketing and business development efforts."

Young Caymanians residing in Cayman Brac are encouraged to apply for a unique opportunity to gain experience and training in the hospitality industry through an internship at Le Soleil d'Or.

Le Soleil d'Or, part of the Dart hospitality portfolio, is an intimate boutique resort that has gained international acclaim. The three-month internship provides exposure to various aspects of operations, including front desk, housekeeping and food and beverage operations, as well as at the property's 20-acre farm. Participants will have the opportunity to work alongside industry professionals, gaining insights and skills that will lay the foundation for their future careers in hospitality.

"We are thrilled to continue this internship for another year. This opportunity is tailor-made for the Cayman Brac community," said Dianne Conolly, Dart's hospitality programme manager. "Following on the success of last year, we are eager to welcome new participants to develop their skills while learning from established industry professionals and, hopefully, go on to pursue their careers to authentically showcase the best the Cayman Islands has to offer."

► 2024 interns with members of the Le Soleil d'Or management team and key Dart staff.

Since 2022, dozens of young Caymanians have benefited from the Dart Hospitality Training Programme, which expanded to include the Le Soleil d'Or internship in 2024, when three interns impressed staff during their three months of training - one of whom went on to secure employment at the resort.

"Providing opportunities for our young people to not only be exposed to the industry but to develop practical skills are important for the development of the Cayman Islands and its tourism product. This also aligns with our sustainable approach to development by providing these opportunities for our youth to acquire the skills and experience they need to thrive," said Joanne Lawson, Dart's chief of staff.

The internship is open to young Caymanians aged 17 to 30 who have recently completed their secondary or tertiary education and reside in Cayman Brac. Applicants should demonstrate their passion for learning, commitment to personal growth and interest in the hospitality industry.

Those interested in applying should do so before the 14 April 2025 deadline. Successful applicants will receive a monthly stipend and basic health insurance during the internship. Upon completion of the programme, participants will have the opportunity to apply for any vacant positions at Le Soleil d'Or.

Women's Health Conference 2025 to address collaboration in women's healthcare ► HSA Consultant Obstetrician/Gynaecologist Dr. Peter Sipos and Dr. Christina McLean were among the lineup of presenters at this year's conference.

► The all-day event includes presentations and exhibitions.

The Cayman Islands Health Services Authority (HSA) will host its 13th annual Women's Health Conference on Friday, 7 March 2025, at the Hotel Indigo.

With the theme, "Women's Reproductive Healthcare: A Collaborative Approach," this year's conference will focus on the importance of interdisciplinary cooperation in advancing women's health. The conference will feature presentations on cutting-edge topics, including:

- Optimising outcomes: The synergistic role of external beam radiation and brachytherapy in gynecologic cancers
- Cervical cancer updates: Emerging paradigms and innovative treatment
- Uterine transposition and beyond: Advances in gynecologic surgery
- Role of the social worker in women's reproductive healthcare
- Implementation of an integrated multidisciplinary follow-up program for gestational diabetes patients using NICE guidelines
- Sickle cell disease in maternal health: The Caribbean experience

- Labour of Love: Role of the partner
- Understanding female physiology
- Women's reproductive mental health across the lifespan
- Emerging therapies in gynecology and women's health
- Pitfalls in gynecology imaging: Case presentations
- Sexual dysfunction in women and men: Insights from a gynaecologist and endocrinologist
- Innovations in gynecologic cancer screening

"This year's theme reflects the essential need for collaboration in the field of women's healthcare to better serve women in our community and region," stated Consultant Gynaecologist at HSA and Chairperson of the event's organising committee, Dr. Gilbertha Alexander. "By bringing together experts from various disciplines, we aim to improve patient outcomes and empower women with the latest developments in reproductive health so they can make more informed decisions regarding their care. We also encourage healthcare professionals attending this event to view it as an opportunity to reflect on how they can strengthen collaboration within their own organisations, as well as at the community, regional, and global levels."

The annual conference is held in recognition of International Women's Day (March 8), a global celebration of women's achievements, that also serves as a call to action of gender equality and women's rights. The 2025 International Women's Day theme, "Accelerate Action," highlights the urgency of addressing gender equality and health disparities.

"Women's healthcare is continuously evolving, and so is our commitment to ensuring that women in the Cayman Islands and beyond have access to the best care and information available," said HSA CEO Lizzette Yearwood. "We have moved the event from its previous location to a larger venue to accommodate growing interest. This tremendous growth in attendance highlights the vital need for education, information-sharing, and collaboration between the private and public sectors. We are excited to welcome an even larger audience this year."

Since its inception in 2012, the Women's Health Conference has expanded significantly, with last year's event drawing over 350 attendees and filling all available spots within just one day. The move to the Hotel Indigo will allow for additional participation from the medical community, including over 20 sponsors and exhibitors, and the public.

The full-day event is free of charge, thanks to the generous support of sponsors including:

- Title Sponsor: Health Services Authority (HSA)
- Gold Sponsors: Baptist Health, Doctor's Hospital, CINICO, OceanMed
- Silver Sponsors: Cayman First, Britcay

Although registration is at capacity, the event will be available for online viewing at a later date. For the event agenda and updates, visit: <https://www.hsa.ky/events-classes/womens-health-conference>.

Public Health Urges Measles Awareness and Vaccination Amid U.S. Outbreak

The Public Health Department is urging the public to remain vigilant following a recent measles outbreak in several U.S. states, including Texas, New York and North Carolina. Given the increased risk of measles exposure due to travel and community interactions, Public Health is emphasising the importance of measles awareness and vaccination for all eligible individuals.

"The measles virus is highly contagious and can lead to severe complications," said Dr. Samuel Williams-Rodriguez, Medical Officer of Health. "Vaccination remains the most effective way to prevent infection and reduce the risk of outbreaks within our community."

Measles is a serious disease that spreads through respiratory droplets and can lead to severe health issues, including pneumonia, encephalitis, and even death. Symptoms that are highly likely to be present in cases of measles are:

- Rash that follows onset of fever
- Cough, acute respiratory infection or conjunctivitis (Pink Eye)
- Sore throat

The MMR (measles, mumps and rubella) vaccine is a safe and highly effective way to prevent measles and its complications.

Public Health also confirms that the Cayman Islands Molecular Biology Laboratory at the Health Services Authority has the ability to test for measles in individuals who present symptoms or have been exposed to a suspected case. Dr. Williams-Rodriguez added, "Our surveillance and laboratory testing capabilities allow us to identify and respond to potential measles cases promptly. Testing for measles is available free of cost across the Cayman Islands. We encourage anyone who develops symptoms such as fever, cough, runny nose, and a rash to seek medical attention immediately. While these symptoms are also common during flu season, they may indicate other illnesses requiring specific medical evaluation and care."

Parents and guardians are reminded that children who are unwell should not be taken to school, group activities or playdates. School and other activities can resume once the child is feeling better and has been fever free for a period of 24 hours.

While the entire population is urged to be aware, early education and school-age children (ages 1-17) and young adults (ages 18-23) are a priority group due to their high interaction in group settings, increasing the risk of transmission. "Our aim is to protect our children at home and abroad," explains Chief Medical Officer, Dr. Nick Gent. "That means ensuring that Caymanians and Cayman residents who are studying in the United States are also included in our awareness and immunisation efforts."

Public Health is reminding parents and guardians to check their children's immunisation records and ensure they are up to date with the MMR vaccine. MMR vaccine is usually given to children at 15 & 18 months old.

To facilitate immunisation efforts, the Public Health Department will host special MMR vaccination clinics on Saturday, 1 March, and Saturday, 8 March, at the Public Health Clinic, (2nd Floor) Smith Road Medical Centre, from 9:00 AM to 1:00 PM. These clinics will be open to individuals who need to update their vaccinations, with a focus on ensuring school-age children are adequately protected.

Parents and guardians are advised to bring their children's immunisation records to the clinic for review. If a child is found to be missing a dose of the MMR vaccine, it will be administered on-site at no cost to patients, no matter their insurance provider.

For more information on measles, vaccination schedules, or to check your immunisation status, please contact the Public Health Department at 244-2648 / 2889 or visit our website at hsa.ky.

You are loved more than words could ever say, our Precious Chad. Today, and always, we think of your sweet handsome face and felt your Excitement for life and your genuine happiness and then we burst with pride as we realized that our dreams for you could not come true.

What an 'Extraordinary Person' you became!!
