A Vibrant Celebration of Food Security

By Christopher Tobutt

Held every Ash Wednesday, the Agriculture Show at Stacy Watler Pavilion in Lower Valley has become an eagerly anticipated tradition, drawing thousands of attendees to celebrate Cayman's vibrant agricultural heritage. This year's show was no exception, with a bustling crowd enjoying the theme, "Food Security is Everybody's Business."

Hon. Johany "Jay" Ebanks, Minister for Agriculture, emphasized the vital partnership between the Cayman Islands Government and the Cayman Islands Agriculture Society. "This year's theme honors our

Editorial: The more things change, Newspaper Advertising remains

A person reading an actual book, magazine or newspaper is just as commonplace now as it has been down through the ages long before the onset of the digital revolution that was supposed to have been the death knell for print.

In fact, the argument about saving the trees has long been reduced to compost as more wood is used for building than its by-products are used for printing.

The more things change, the more they stay the same.

We still love to read. A tactile and emotional connection is made when fingers, paper and brain interact.

But in the 21st century, information overload and being bombarded with volumes of online content act as barriers and walls - sometimes extracting a toll before you move on or even to move in.

It seems counter-productive even to the point of trying to scale that 'wall' counter-intuitive.

The printed content is less hassle.

Whatever happened to reading without being interrupted? Nowadays the incessant interruptions even erupt right through what you are reading or trying to read!

The blitz of the bombardment of advertising and enticements to try every manner of concoction and contraption explains why so much of online content gets lost 'in the wash'.

Digital risks becoming a victim of its own success. Information lost means lost opportunities, especially in the field of advertising; whether promoting products or trying to recruit people.

The onslaught of 'content' intercut with globs of advertising demanding that you 'click here to continue reading' or taking you on a detour into a forest of advertising that you almost soon forget what you started reading in the first place, boggles the mind.

It wasn't supposed to be this way. The much-vaunted digital revolution has without doubt revolutionised access to information. But that it's now at risk of being a victim of its own success.

Content management is now a full-time job...not just for the 'content managers' but the consumers of the content they produce.

Somewhere along the line in the past few years we started missing the message simply because there's just too much of it.

Time spent online is now more about quantity of time rather than the quality of the experience.

And within that important messages get lost both 'in translation' and due to the sheer volume of distraction.

There's something special about a well-crafted piece of advertising art that holds your attention without itself being an obstruction.

Oh for the days when a good advert was worthy of being framed; of being a gentle suggestion and not a mind-numbing clarion 'call to action'.

The days when an advertisement was a trustworthy companion gently, almost unobtrusively, suggesting to you the best value for your money; putting you directly into the hands of the people you want to reach.

It worked before and it's still working now.

For local employment in small markets, where access to a local talent pool of expertise and experience is just a page away. And it's easier to find...and file.

(Ever tried copying, pasting, saving, filing...and then trying to find whatever ever it was that you had copied, pasted, saved and filed amongst the hordes of other stuff that you had copied, pasted, saved and filed somewhere...amidst lots of other stuff digitally filed somewhere?)

That might work for large office and business enterprises. Not necessarily so when all you want is to find someone local to do the job who want to get done, and that potential employee just wants to get that job.

Whether they be Caymanians or work permit holders, that pool of talent is there.

Reaching out to them and having them reach back out to your business is good for business, jobs and the economy.

In this COVID pandemic, many people left Cayman, but many more have stayed, and many others have returned.

Many did not leave because of sheer practicalities; the 14-day quarantine could mean a lost two-week pay packet and further out-of-pocket expense for employee and employer.

Communication is key in getting the job market moving but its crucial to make the process as seamless and uncluttered via a meeting place for employers and potential employees.

That 'meeting place' could very well be in your local paper. In fact, it is.

In these times, print has maintained its place without excessively competing for...or with... cyberspace.

All things to their own time and place.

The more things change etc etc etc.

dynamic agriculture sector, which stands as the foundation of our beloved Cayman Islands," he stated. "Our mission for food security is strengthened by the incredible work of our local farmers."

The pavilion was a hive of activity, with over a hundred vendors showcasing their products. Angela Wood of Cayman Scents has been creating natural bath and body products for 26 years. "I try to keep everything as natural as possible," she explained, displaying her range of soaps, scents, and lotions made from local ingredients like coconut oil, goat's milk, and honey. Her booth was brimming with shower gels, body sprays, palm wax candles, and clean-burning coconut wax candles that last for 90 hours.

One of the standout stalls was Dell's Fresh Farm Produce, overflowing with vibrant fruits and vegetables grown at East End Farms. Visitors marveled at the array of bananas, plantains, pumpkins, carrots, papayas, bitter melons, eggplants, yams, sweet peppers, and the fiery red hot Scotch bonnet peppers. Jeremy, representing Dell's, proudly shared tips on healthy eating and sustainable farming.

Betty Wood, representing the Bodden Town Heritage Committee, returned to the show with an imaginative display featuring the "Agriculture Man," a whimsical figure made of bananas and a coconut head, riding a bicycle. Each district — East End, West Bay, George Town, North Side, and Cayman Brac—boasted its own impressive booth, showcasing local produce and historical treasures.

Inside the pavilion, judges meticulously assessed the best examples of fruits, vegetables, and traditional crafts. Tracey Rankine and Tiffany Rankine-Law evaluated the roots and tubers category. “We’re looking for uniformity, suitability for its purpose, and how appetizing it is,” they explained as they examined cassavas and yams.

Kemia Cunningham Hemmings judged the art and craft exhibits with a keen eye for neatness, intricacy, finish, creativity, and traditional aspects of the craft. Meanwhile, livestock judge Carlin Powery started early, evaluating the cattle and looking at the goats, pigs, and poultry, “The suns out – its going to be a good day,” he said. The livestock area proved to be a magnet for families, with children captivated by the beautiful animals.

Pony rides provided another source of delight for young children, who eagerly lined up with their parents to enjoy a leisurely walk around the paddock. Erica from K-Herb showcased her natural alternatives to everyday products, including cleaners, hand sanitizers, mosquito repellants, beauty oils, turmeric, neem, aloe vera, herbal extracts, and powders.

The lawn was alive with vendors selling an eclectic array of products. Windy Vale Estate, a local company, offered jams, jellies, and preserves made from locally grown fruits. The aroma of traditional Caymanian, Jamaican, and Caribbean foods wafted through the air, tempting visitors with stewed turtle, pork, chicken, rice and beans, shrimp, and festival.

It was enough to make anyone’s mouth water. The 56th Annual Agriculture Show was a resounding success, celebrating the hard work and dedication of local farmers while highlighting the importance of food security for the Cayman Islands. As attendees left the pavilion with full hearts and satisfied appetites, the event stood as a testament to the power of community and the enduring spirit of Cayman’s agricultural heritage.

Public Health Acknowledges Measles Case in Miami, Urges Continued Vaccination Efforts

The Public Health Department is reinforcing its call for measles awareness and vaccination following the confirmation of a measles case in Miami, Florida. With ongoing outbreaks in several U.S. states, including Texas, New York, and Georgia, regional travel increases the risk of importation of measles cases.

Chief Medical Officer Dr. Nick Gent stated, "The identification of a measles case in Miami highlights the importance of ensuring our population is protected against this highly contagious disease. Vaccination is the best defense against measles, and we encourage all parents to check their children's immunisation status."

The MMR (measles, mumps, and rubella) vaccine is usually administered at 15 months and 18 months. However, prior to the recent outbreak in the United States, the Ministry of Health and the Public Health Department had been in the process of revising the national immunisation schedule to administer the first dose of MMR at 12 months instead of 15 months. This adjustment, which aligns with current international immunisation guidelines, is planned for implementation in the coming months to enhance early protection against measles.

"We are encouraging parents of 1-year-olds to take advantage of the upcoming vaccination clinics this Saturday," said Dr. Samuel Williams-Rodriguez, Medical Officer of Health. "This proactive approach will help ensure that young children receive the protection they need earlier, reducing their risk of exposure."

In response to this latest situation, the Public Health Department will be increasing access to the special MMR vaccination clinics on Saturday, 8 March, from 9:00 AM to 1:00 PM to include the George Town Public Health Clinic (2nd Floor, Smith Road Medical Centre), West Bay Health Centre and Bodden Town Health Centre. In Cayman Brac at the Aston Ruddy Medical Wing, a special walk in MMR vaccination clinic will be held on Wednesday, 12 March from 9:00 AM to 2:00 PM. These clinics are open to all individuals needing to update their vaccinations, with a focus on young children and school-age children.

Empowering Young Minds: Marie Martin Primary's Science Fair Sparks Curiosity, Creativity, and Critical Thinking

► Two students engage with a science project

► Students showcase their projects to the judges

Marie Martin Primary School proudly hosted its annual Science Fair for the second consecutive year on Thursday, 20th February, offering students a valuable opportunity to engage in hands-on learning, explore their curiosity, and develop essential critical thinking and problem-solving skills. With the continued support of Health City Cayman, the event once again highlighted the school's dedication to fostering a passion for science and innovation.

According to Science Lead and event organiser, Mrs. Kadian Boland-Curtis, "The Science Fair plays a key role in enhancing students' educational experiences by encouraging them to experiment, discover, and present their findings—core elements of the Cayman National Science Curriculum. It not only supports academic growth but also inspires creativity, teamwork, and a lifelong love of learning."

This year's fair saw an impressive 58 student entries, each showcasing curiosiboth familiar and new faces, ensuring a well-rounded evaluation of the projects. Returning Judge Mr. Tiyen Miller, Science and Technology Coach from the Ministry of Education, was joined by first-time judges Mrs. Davienne Spence-Simpson, Science Lead at Red Bay Primary School, and Mrs. Morgan Golden Ebanks, Sustainability Officer at the Ministry of Sustainability & Climate Resiliency.

Several notable guests attended the event, including Mr. Joseph Hew, Leader of the Opposition; past Principal Ms. Marie Martin; and Ms. Shakirra Connor, Education Specialist at Health City Cayman. A strong turnout from parents and community partners further underscored the shared commitment to supporting student success.

Mrs. Boland-Curtis extended her gratitude to all participants, judges, guests, and community partners for their continued encouragement and support, which help make the Science Fair a meaningful and inspiring event for the entire school community.

The Family Resource Centre Announces 2025 Honouring Women Month Event Calendar

The Family Resource Centre (FRC) of the Department of Counselling Services is pleased to be celebrating the 26th anniversary of Honouring Women Month (HWM) in the Cayman Islands with a schedule of inspiring, empowering and inclusive events.

Over the years, Honouring Women Month has been widely celebrated with the objective of highlighting women's accomplishments while addressing gender-specific issues affecting them.

This March, the Family Resource Centre will host 27 events that are open to the community, bringing together local entrepreneurs, artisans and industry leaders in a month-long campaign celebrating female achievement and raising awareness of gender equality issues.

All proceeds raised from the HWM events will go towards supporting the FRC's Young Parent Services and events, which provide parenting, life, technology and employability skills to young parents. The programme assists young parents in accessing information and resources that support the development of healthy parent-child relationships and provides practical tools for raising children.

The HWM 2025 events are linked to this year's International Women's Day theme - 'Accelerate Action'. The theme emphasises the importance of taking swift and decisive steps to achieve gender equality both in personal and professional spheres.

Hon. Dwayne Seymour, Minister for Sustainability & Climate Resiliency and Wellness, said: "Honouring Women Month has established itself as a true highlight in the community's calendar, recognising the important and significant impact of women in all aspects of our society. I am proud to support these events and the positive impact I believe they will bring."

Highlights of the 2025 Honouring Women Month's schedule include:

Celebrating Women Under the Stars, an International Women's Day Event Saturday 8 March, Kimpton Seafire Resort + Spa Beach Deck, 5.30pm. An evening dedicated to empowerment, celebration, and networking. The event's keynote speakers will be Director of the Cayman Islands Department of Tourism, Rosa Harris, Senior Manager, Business Development at Cayman Registry - a division of Cayman Maritime, Kayla Martin, and Tamsin Deasey, Director of Marketing, Communications and Admission Registration at UCCI. Ms Harris will share from her vast experience and knowledge in the tourism and hospitality industries to discuss how leadership and advocacy can drive meaningful change towards gender equality. Ms Martin will be speaking on the value of diversity in maritime professions, and strategies to accelerate action at a personal and professional level to increase women's representation in this sector, and Ms Deasey will share her insights on the intersection between artificial intelligence and gender equality, highlighting how we can leverage AI to create a more equitable future. Attendees will also enjoy a music from a DJ, dinner, drinks, and the opportunity to network.

Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Workshop Series 24-28 March, times vary.

Led by psychotherapist and equity consultant Desiree Phillips, this series of workshops will tackle topics such as professional action planning, importance of male allyship managing hidden trauma, and unconscious bias. The sessions are aimed at clinicians, social workers, and policy professionals, and women in leadership.

Free to attend. Register now at <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/5D23YZS> for more information.

Female Farmers & Artisan Market 28 March, Glass House Lawn, 11am-5pm.

Supporting female artists and farmers from across the islands, this popular event returns for another year. Shop for a variety of items from jewellery and handmade soaps to jellies, breads and hot sauces, as well as the finest in fresh local produce.

Free to attend. Vendors must register to participate <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/BL2NSB7>

Speaking about the importance of the Honouring Women Month, Charmaine Miller, Clinical Supervisor, at the Family Resource Centre, said: "The Family Resource Centre is proud to be leading Honouring Women Month 2025 with this schedule of community events. Every year, we aim to elevate our offering and engage the whole community in the conversation about gender equality through learning opportunities, networking and plenty of fun too.

"Honouring Women Month is an opportunity to celebrate women's achievements while raising awareness and educating the public about the specific gender-related issues impacting women in the Cayman Islands. Global data indicates that achieving full gender parity is still over a century away, however the FRC is committed to accelerating that timeline here in Cayman. Through our work with young parents we know that when women are well-educated, protected and empowered all of society benefits. We hope that the public will take the opportunity to join us on this mission this month, and beyond."

Stacie Sybersma, Deputy Chief Officer for Wellness, added: "The Family Resource Centre team have curated an exciting and diverse calendar of events for Honouring Women Month 2025. It is important to remember that while these events celebrate women, all genders are welcome to participate. This month's events support the movement towards gender equality, which is United Nations 5th Sustainable Development Goal."

Academy Women Claim CIFA Presidents Cup Victory in Thrilling 3-2 Final

► Academy Sports Club Women's Team

Academy Sports Club women's team secured the CIFA Presidents Cup with an exciting 3-2 victory over Sunset FC on Wednesday, March 5th at the Truman Bodden Sports Complex.

The hard-fought final showcased the remarkable progress of Academy's women's program, which continues to grow from strength to strength under Coach Fabian Sangines, who heads up the club's women's program. The match was marked by an exceptional performance from all players, with team captain Chelsea Brown providing outstanding leadership throughout and dramatically scoring the winning goal with a powerful header from a corner kick in the dying seconds of the match.

Academy's balanced squad, featuring a successful mix of young and experienced players, delivered a standout performance against one of the strongest teams in the league, demonstrating the depth and quality throughout the roster.

"This Presidents Cup victory is a testament to the dedication of our women's program and the club's philosophy of investing in youth development," said Paul Byles, Head Coach of Academy Sports Club Men's team and head of the club's youth program. "Every player contributed to this win against a formidable Sunset FC side. The leadership shown by Chelsea Brown in those final moments exemplifies the character we aim to build in all our players."

The Presidents Cup triumph comes at the midway point of the season, giving Academy's women's team positive momentum as they continue their league campaign. The club's investment in youth development continues to pay dividends across all levels of competition.

Byles thanked Coach Fabian Sangines and the entire coaching staff for their contributions to the team's success.

The club remains committed to expanding opportunities for female footballers in the Cayman Islands and building on this success in future competitions.

C&W's In-House Creative Team Triumphs at 2025 CAF Advertising Awards

In a remarkable display of talent and innovation, the in-house creative team at C&W Communications has emerged victorious at the 2025 Caribbean Advertising Federation (CAF) Advertising Awards.

As first-time entrants, the team representing the region's leading telecommunications provider secured two prestigious Silver ADDYs in the highly competitive Social Media Campaign category for Flow's "Valentine Love Connection" and "Christmasing" campaigns.

Notably, C&W's creative team was the only winner not representing an external agency, studio, or production house.

"This win is a powerful testament to the incredible talent we have right here at Liberty Caribbean," said Inge Smidts, Chief Executive Officer, C&W Communications.

C&W Communications are the operators of Flow, Flow Business, C&W Business and BTC in The Bahamas.

"Our internal creative team's ability to deliver innovative, award-winning campaigns reinforces our commitment to excellence and our focus on connecting the Caribbean through cutting-edge technology and compelling storytelling. We have been operating in the Caribbean for more than a century and we are proud to record another first in our company's storied history."

Britta Reinhardt, Chief Commercial Officer, B2C, paid tribute to the in-house team known internally to colleagues as the 'The Creative Hub' which is led by Khyron Danclair, Senior Manager, Brand & Creative, C&W Communications.

► Britta Reinhardt

"We are thrilled to receive this recognition. Our team poured passion, creativity, and hard work into these campaigns, and this achievement proves that great ideas and impactful storytelling can thrive within our organization," he said.

"We also extend heartfelt thanks to our internal stakeholders for their unwavering support, critical insights, and positive feedback. Their input has been invaluable in refining our creative strategies and pushing us to achieve excellence. It's an exciting time for us as we continue to push boundaries and set new benchmarks in digital communications."

The Caribbean Advertising Federation (CAF) Advertising Awards celebrate the very best in creativity and innovation across the region. Recognizing outstanding campaigns that captivate Caribbean audiences and drive industry excellence, the CAF Awards highlight achievements in both digital and traditional media.

This year's event showcased a dynamic mix of seasoned agencies and emerging talent, all pushing the boundaries of advertising to capture the unique spirit of the Caribbean.

Donna Bush Signs Off After 13 Years of Service to CIG

Media stalwart and longtime civil servant Donna Bush retired from the Cayman Islands Government last month, following 13 years with the public service.

Ms. Bush initially joined the Government Information Services, now the Department of Communications, in 2012, where she served as the founding anchor and producer of CIGTV. She later held roles as News Director and Senior News Producer, contributing to content development, programme production, and day-to-day operations of CIGTV news. She also supported the drafting of monitoring guidelines and policies for CIGTV news production.

During her tenure, Ms. Bush's was involved in the implementation of a media training programme for senior leaders, providing guidance on media relations, interview techniques, and crisis communication. She also served as a liaison for press briefings and public engagement. Additionally, she contributed to the redevelopment of the CIGTV news format. In recognition of her work, she received the Chief Officer's Award for the Cabinet Office in March 2024.

"On behalf of the Cabinet Office, I would like to thank Donna for her commitment over the years. She leaves behind a legacy of kindness, enthusiasm and love for her work that will remain evident in the Department of Communications and the government overall", said Acting Cabinet Secretary, Jason Webster.

National Roads Authority Urges Drivers to Be Cautious as Schools Reopen

As the school break concludes and students return to classes next week, the National Roads Authority (NRA) of the Cayman Islands urges all drivers to exercise heightened caution in school zones and at crosswalks. Adhering to traffic regulations in these areas is crucial to ensure the safety of our children and school staff.

When school zone lights are flashing, the speed limit is reduced to 15 mph, and strict compliance is mandatory to protect pedestrians. Fines will be enforced for speeding in these areas. Additionally, pedestrians always have the right of way at crosswalks, and drivers must remain vig-ilant, especially during school hours.

For detailed information on school catchment areas and boundaries, please refer to the Department of Education Services' guidelines at schools.edu.ky.

The NRA emphasizes the collective responsibility of all road users to maintain a safe environment for our students. By observing speed limits, yielding to pedestrians, and exercising caution, we can ensure the well-being of our community as the new school term begins.

REEFS GO LIVE RETURNS FOR A NEW SEASON – DIRECT FROM LITTLE CAYMAN HOPE SPOT

CCMI brings the ocean directly to classrooms around the world through underwater live-stream lessons

In 2018, the Central Caribbean Marine Institute (CCMI) launched Reefs Go Live, their innovative, flagship education programme that live-streams directly from underwater on the coral reefs in Little Cayman to students in classrooms around the world in real time. The 2024 season of Reefs Go live had more than 45,000 views for the live broadcasts from ocean enthusiasts around the globe. This year, CCMI's Reefs Go Live team hopes to expand the impact of the programme with four new episodes and a range of educational offerings, including mini documentaries and supplemental teaching resources to help integrate the material into classroom lessons around the world.

Coral reefs across the planet have been suffering as record-breaking ocean temperatures continue to be recorded. However, the reefs of Little Cayman have shown promising signs of hope during this period of global coral loss, with many of the key reef-building coral species in Little Cayman surviving the most extreme coral bleaching event on record. This is supported by fish populations continuing to thrive, thanks to effective management in Little Cayman marine protected areas. Reefs Go Live transports viewers to this unique marine ecosystem that hold such importance for marine biodiversity across the region. The broadcasts will showcase the value of coral reefs in the world we live in and highlighting the importance of conservation, research and the work that CCMI is doing to conserve these essential ecosystems at such a critical time in their history.

CCMI's General Manager, Kate Holden is excited to launch the seventh year of Reefs Go Live:

'This year marks the culmination of some of CCMI's largest and most ground-breaking research projects. These findings, which share insight into what the future holds for Cayman's reefs in the face of climate change, will be fed into every broadcast of this season. Our recent data indicate that the reefs of Little Cayman show signs of resilience and recovery during some of the most extreme environmental conditions on record. CCMI looks forward to bringing the classroom to students all over the globe, live from the unique ecosystem that is Little Cayman's coral reefs.'

Coral bleaching: Process of corals appearing white, due to the loss of algae living inside them.

The first episode of 2025 will take place on Friday, 21st March at 10 am Cayman time (UTC -5h). The episode, 'Exploring the unknown ocean: Underwater mountains of Cayman' will show what CCMI researchers found when exploring the previously un-charted underwater mountains of Pickle Bank and 12-mile Bank and why this is so important for coral reefs in the Cayman Islands and regionally.

Viewers of each episode will be able to ask questions of the diver and participate in polls through the online platform to make Reefs Go Live an interactive experience.

Additional episodes for this year will run at 10 am (UTC -5h) on the following dates:

Friday, 11th April: Cryptic Creatures of the Reef

Friday, 9th May: Endangered corals: Finding and restoring rare coral species

Friday, 6th June (World Ocean Day): Climate Change and our Ocean

Registration for Reefs Go Live is free and is only required once to receive access to all episodes: <https://donate.reefresearch.org/rgl2025>.

Reefs Go Live provides an opportunity for students from all over the world to engage with the stunning ocean environment in its most natural format. As coral reefs around the world face unprecedented pressure, generating increased engagement with these precious ecosystems creates an opportunity to promote marine sustainability in a positive and fun way.

Reefs Go Live utilises streaming technology with underwater video and audio equipment to enable real time broadcasting from Little Cayman's stunning coral reefs. Little Cayman, a Mission Blue Hope Spot, hosts some of the most biodiverse reef ecosystems in the Caribbean, which shows promising signs of resiliency to climate change impacts. The broadcasts and education materials draw connections from CCMI's current research conducted in Little Cayman to the national science curriculum and key ocean literacy principles, making CCMI's work relevant and accessible to students and viewers of all ages, and emphasising the relationship that we all have to coral reefs, no matter where we are.

Reefs Go Live is a free education programme that is made possible by the generosity of The Edmund F. and Virginia B. Ball Foundation.
